Grain Bad

The Wasnington official said there seems to be a sufficient supply of hay and forage in most areas visited so far and he said the state probably would not need to come under the federal nay program. "Grain conditions are bad on non-irrigated land " he declared however, and that's where the grain program comes in

Under the federal grain program, a farmer would receive a certificate good for one dollar per hundredweight of feed Two thirds of the grain purchased would come from local sources and one third from commodity credit warehouses

"This would benefit the local merchant and producer as well as the farmer getting the grain,' Frazee commented in explaining how the program would help people throughout the drought areas

UN Has Suez Question Now

Suez Canal issue. The hopes of the peace-seeking elements of the world ride with the new approach.

Perhaps the council will discover an early and satisfactory answer to the Suez seizure. But it cannot be gamsaid that the 60 days of manipulation of the problem by nations acting outside the UN framework have made such hopes dimmer.

A reluctance to deliver the issue at the cutset to the UN, a resort rather to old time power politics, is an unhappy phenomenon which must be charged greatly to the Dulles administration.

What is so alluring about power politics and fore the turn of the century is a thing that de- craft that turns out that way?

At long last the United Nations Security Coun- feats the reflective mind. The practices turned cil has been given the dangerous and vexing out so uniformly bad. The most hopeful thing about the vision of statecraft that emerged from World War II was an escape from the disastrous failures of the past.

While the Security Council adjusts itself for the Suez issue, it would be time well spent if Mr. Dulles and other ministers who have just now ended their fruitless maneuvers would reflect pointedly on the historic fact that most of the great powers who used old time diplomacy in the '80's to arrange the first Suez agreement have failed to survive the agreement itself. A Call To Arms

It is not difficult to understand why Nebraska's Senator Carl Curtis is "sick and tired" of Clyde Ellis, general manager of the National Rural Electric Co-operative Association.

The Nebraskan charges that Ellis in his official position is using money contributed by the REA members for Democratic campaign purposes. Curtis, according to the news columns, had in mind statements by Ellis charging that the position of rural districts had been weakened under the Eisenhower administration. that the preference clause which gives public power agencies first call on federal power is not being applied and that Nebraska should be getting the proposed Fort Randall-Grand Island 230,000 volt transmission line, but Undersecretary of Interior Clarence Davis, and Assistant Secretary Aandahl have, in effect. blocked the effort.

Now naturally Curtis would not entertain

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

There is no way of knowing how many Americans carefully read the printed account or listened to the major farm address of President Eisenhower in Peoria Tuesday night. Among farm people particularly, that Eisenhower address merits not only the closest attention and subsequent reflection no less than what Adlai Stevenson is saying about the American farmer today. While the reader may overlook it, there is a historic quality to the farm debate now in progress. It may turn out to be one of the major factors in the decision to be reached next November. And no one in Nebraska or in other states where agriculture either predominates or is an important factor in the economy should mistake the significance of what is taking place.

The young farmer and his wife, starting out to establish themselves on the land, find themselves in trouble because it was necessary for them to go into debt not only for their land but also for the equipment to farm it. These two in the last year and a half have found themselves in a price squeeze where that which they produce on the farm sells for less and that which they must buy costs them more. The President may engage in a campaign of glowing promises that the farmer will enjoy his share of the national income, but in these last 18 months not only the young man and his young wife but the farmer and his wife who have grown gray in tending the soil know better. They know that no matter how kindly Mr. Eisenhower may be disposed, for them the going has been tougher. They know the President has shifted ground from the position he took at Kasson, Minnesota, four years ago. There, they and everybody else had the impression the price support plan at 90 per cent of parity would be the basic policy of the Eisenhower administration.

It would have been so simple for President Eisenhower to have told the American people at Kasson in 1952 that the rigid price support program based upon 90 per cent of parity was a "political grab-bag" which held nothing but "mockery and deceit" for the farmers themselves. That was not the language, however, that Mr. Eisenhower utilized in 1952, and no one should know of his shift in position better than the President himself.

₩e haven't the slightest notion how many Nebraskans living in a state where farm income is so vital to prosperity will think the President's major farm address through. We said that as a result of it, the issue has been joined between President Eisenhower and his rival, Adlai Stevenson. If the American farmer rejects a price support program based upon 90 per cent of parity. the peoples of these Midwest farm states will wait a good many years before another Congress commits itself to the rigid price prop plan. Most Nebraskans will recognize that the President was wandering in the land of make-believe when he credited the flexible price support program indirectly with encouraging farm practices eliminating surpluses. The drought extending over a wide stretch of the great North American plains cut into the production of wheat, corn and some other crops infinitely more than any other single factor. But that drought not only reduced production, and reducing production, naturally reduced surpluses, but it has intensified the problems of thousands of farmers con-

Thinking It Through

At least the farmer and his wife have adequate, specific information in this presidential campaign of 1956-something which they did not have in 1952-on which to base a choice. They know now where the Eisenhower administration stands. Nothing short of an agricultural collapse - nothing short of an acute crisis for the farming people-will restore that price support program which despite all statements to the centrary did contribute to years of economic good health in the farming regions of America. Nothing would restore it but a congress averriding a presidential veto in the event of Ike's re-election.

a friendly feeling for anybody by the name of Ellis or any other name who took that position with reference to the Eisenhower administration. And if the other side of the story is to be told we suspect that Mr. Ellis is just about as sick and tired of Senator Curtis as Curtis is

All that Mr. Curtis needs to worry about is that transmission line, so badly needed for increased irrigation in the Platte Valley of this state. As the days go by and drought conditions become more intensified here in Nebraska, Nebraska's representatives in Congress can anticipate an increasing amount of criticism in the defeat of all efforts in this state to procure additional electric current for well irrigation.

It is not so much a question of Curtis being sick of Ellis or Ellis being sick of Curtis as it is what are the facts?

They were doubly interesting because they came to most Nebraskans in the form of a surprise, and because they have a formidable meaning to an all-public power state embarked beyond the point of safe recall in a statewide business venture which must succeed or court

Sidney S. McMath, former governor of Arkansas, urged his association to fight arbitrary increases in wholesale power rates by the Eisenhower administration with a view to eliminating the traditional differential between federal public power rates and those of the private utilities, Virgil T. Hanlon, manager of the East River Electric Power Cooperative of Madison, South Dakota, called for support of the Trimble bill whose aim is the fixing of cost allocations at multipurpose federal dams to prevent the administration from making arbitrary re-allocations. He revealed that cost re-allocations to power users of Fort Randall electricity had amounted to 126 per cent.

Truly these warnings warrant instant attention in Nebraska for they affect the welfare, possibly the survival of Nebraska's widespread rural electrification program.

No one any longer underestimates the boon of rural electrification and most recall the truly great risk involved during the 30's when men of the rural areas parlayed millions to develop a field spurned by the private utilities—a labor of love for none expected nor received the rewards of profit. And most recall that the justification for the long range risk was a favorable and friendly federal attitude-a rate structure and credit conditions which would spell success if mixed with sound public serving operation. The REA's have continued in good faith. This is no time for a new federal administration to consider its moral obligations any less seriously.

Stressing Homesteading

The National Park Service will spend $260,-000 improving the Homestead National Monument near Beatrice. The allocation is part of a i0-year program that will give the site additional buildings, service facilities and roadways.

It will be money well spent if for no other reason that it will finance a permanent reminder of a great public truth to say nothing of keeping the history of Nebraska's development ever clear. The monument is a memorial to the opening of Nebraska land under the Homestead Act of 1863-perhaps the greatest agricultural giveaway, or subsidy, in history. A Republican administration gave settlers a family-sized farm on the condition that the settlers improved and made something of it. Although the settlers and their successors more than made good on their part of the bargain and the modern state of Nebraska emerged, the same political party today would be caught dead before it would subscribe to what it once proved to be a sound venture. Leaders of it have openly declared the advisability of eliminating some 3 million families subsisting on family sized farms, dumping them into the labor pool while their erstwhile farms are collected into greater individual holdings. The early day homesteaders would neither have comprehended such an attitude nor subscribed

Demos Loaded For Prosperity Claim

WASHINGTON - It isn't sup- fall profit to the government. posed to be sprung until later in the campaign, but the Democrats are preparing an answer to the GOP "prosperity" theme. They intend to use the Eisenhower administration's own statistics.

Figures compiled by the Labor Department show that housewives are paying the highest food prices in history-despite last week's 2-10 of 1 per cent drop. Meanwhile, the farmers are getting less for their crops. This means the middlemen—the big processors and packers-are pocketing the difference at the expense of both housewives and farmers.

Significantly, most of Secretary of Agriculture Benson's so-called farm" advisers, serving on his many advisory committeees, are not farmers at all but middlemen. The cheese program that backfired, for example, was recommended by A. W. Sigmund of Kraft Cheese. Under this program, the Agriculture Department bought cheese from the companies, then sold it back to them at a profit without the cheese ever leaving the warehouses.

This was widely advertised as a subsidy to help the dairy tarmers. But all it did was benefit the cheese middlemen. The cheese deal was so smelly that the Justice Department, under prodding from Congress, has ordered the cheese companies to pay back their wind-

The Labor Department figures. which the Democrats intend to fling at the Republicans, are based en a survey of food prices in over 50 key cities. Prices in January, 1953-when the Eisenhower administration took office-are compared with July, 1956.

According to these official figures, white bread has jumped from 16 to 18 cents a loaf since Eisenhower took office; peanut butter from 49 to 54 cents a can; grape jelly from 24 to 27 cents a jar; coffee from 86 cents to $1.05 a pound; milk, 19 to 20 cents a quart; lard, 16 to 20 cents; oatmeal, 18 to 19 cents; soda crackers. 25 to 27 cents; pork chops. 73 to 86 cents; canned salmon, 53 to 60 cents; dried prunes, 29 to 36 cents; cola drinks, 29 to 33 cents.

A few basic items have dropped in price, including round steak from $1.03 to 88 cents a pound; ice cream from 30 to 29 cents a pint; and butter from 80 to 72 cents a pound. Oranges have gone up from 54 to 66 cents a dozen: canned orange juice from 34 to 33 cents.

What all these figures add up to is the highest grocery bills in U.S. history for housewives—and Democrats intend to throw this back at Eisenhower on the prosperity issue.

Ike's Popularity Seen Dying Down

CHICAGO - The farm revolt against the Eisenhower administration even in the Midwest Republican heartland is all of a sudden widely acknowledged. But it is not the only aspect of political change at the grass roots.

There is the "tight money" policy of the administration which makes money scarce and interest rates high, It is a major complaint of the farmer, but it operates down the line.

When a Democrat says "Eisenhower has lost small business," he cites tight money. But the hunger for funds in expanding America applies also to public bodies, to home builders, even to big business. They find it hard to satisfy their wants and their employmentcreating plans are cut back.

It is the first taste for young people of the kind of retrenchment that was commonplace to the depression generation. They are registering Democratic in far greater numbers than they are Republican.

* * * The spontaneous enthusiasm for marked a feature in 1952 has ebbed. Citizens for Eisenhower, according to politicians, are not much in evidence this year and will count little.

Democrats find, too, that their own ranks have gotten resentment and rebellion out of their systems. They were in large numbers notoriously mad at other Democratsincluding Harry Truman - four years ago. Now there is a surge of party loyalty; the feudist is out of fashion, and Adlai Stevenson is running as his own man.

Few Democrats contend that the public is mad at President Eisenhower, but very many are satisfied that the President has grown increasingly remote from the American people, even before his two illnesses. The people have not seen him enough in the recent past, they suggest, and he has not been in enough fights as their cham-

This view says that the public does not want the President in a passive role. It does not take imp account the exuberant crowds that greeted the President's mere appearance in Des Moines last week. N. 12 12

The curious thing is that there is certainly no dramatic or emotional issue in the 1956 picture such as the Korean war or the tax scandals of the Truman administration to account for the slippage in Eisenhower strength. There are other factors adverse to him.

People intensely interested in foreign policy are alarmed. John Nuveen, one of the first leaders of the Eisenhower for President movement in Illinois, a lifelong Republican, announced he would vote for Stevenson just as the President entered the state. Nuveen said My Eisenhower had failed to give effective foreign-policy leadership. This group is probably small.

There are those who quietly cite the President's health - an issue that will remain undercover throughout the campaign, barring a presidential illness. There is the controversy over Vice-President Richard M. Nixon.

Added up, they still aren't dramatic. They are not even accompanied by any great wave of pro-Stevenson emotion. Stevenson's party likes his fighting togs better than it did his rhetoric, but there is also nostalgia for those high-minded speeches. (Copyright 1956, By UF Syndicate, Inc.)

BOB CONSIDINE Trade Fairs Show U.S. To Advantage

NEW YORK - The U.S. sells itself in assorted ways overseas. It sends over a million men. It sends Iollipops. It sends a fleet. It sends surplus soybean curd, And it sends exhibits to international fairs. This year close to 50.000.000 foreigners will goggle at U.S. gee-gaws planted in fairs by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Office of International Trade Fairs.

A Reader's Digest summary of what we show at fairs, written last year, pointed out that we knocked the Russians for a loop by sending Cineram a against them in Bangkok, and a six foot wooden chicken (with a sound track on how and why chickens lay eggs) against their exhibit at Bari, Italy.

We gave away frozen custard in Bogota, Colombia, made from surplus powdered milk from Wisconsin. At Paris's big international fair we drove the mural-conscious Russian exhibitors back to Moscow by presenting a model 5-room American home, complete with a good-locking young "mother," working the most modern kitchen gadgets, "father" puttering around the Ford Thunderbird in the carport and working at his power tools, and the "children" (actually children of U.S. troops stationed in France) frolicking with toys in the play room.

An American exhibit in Spain taught that country's citrus packers how to prepare oranges for shipment and concentrate and can their mice. In Karachi we taught Pakistanis (worried about there lagging rate trade; how to turn the stuff into soft fibre for uses beyond burlap bags. Our atomsfor-peace exhibits have struck subtly but hard at the Russian propaganda that we seek only to rattle atomic swords. Our TV shows in Indonesia won millions.

We wowed East Germans by showing-in nearby West Germany -the average wardrobe of an American family, with price tags (the greatest wonder of all) attached to each article, and statistics showing that an American carpenter makes enough money in three weeks to outfit his family for

The zovernment works closely with private industry in these exhibitions, and there again we make strikes. Occasionally, a Communist nation will make a great effort to prove that it is hep in the ways of production. At the international trade fair in Lyon, France, Red China proudly showed off heavy machinery, motorcycles and other things not easy to come by. But its representatives had to look out the window when other nations indicated an interest in buying, and asked for delivery dates.

At the Indonesia fair, people lined up for miles to see a typical U.S. voting machine in operation. Electric shavers have literally drawn tens of thousands of spectators. So have exhibits of Lionel trains. His Majesty, Mohammed Zahir Shah, king of Afghanistan, appeared on TV for the first time au the U.S. pavilion at the Kabul fåir. "Do It Yourself" kits killed the people at Stockholm, Damascus, Vienna and Zagreb.

Waverly, Neb. To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The recent statement to the effect that small farmers are going to have to get up and go to work like everyone else, with which President Eisenhower is reported to have been in agreement prompts this letter. It is similar to the statement attributed to Secretary of Agriculture Benson when he agreed with an article calling farmers a bunch of hogs

The real truth is that farmers are living under a government that is subsidizing big business. This results in higher operating costs for farmers and lower prices for the produce they sell. An outstanding example of this is the government hog-buying program under Democratic and Republican administrations when price support laws were the same. Former Agriculture Secretary Brannan agreed to buy pork products provided the farmer was paid a 90 per cent support price by the packer. Secretary Benson agreed to buy pork at the prevailing market price-the idea being that some of this would "trickle down" to the American farmer. The Brannan policy resulted in a fair price to both the processor and farmer, while the Benson policy resulted in unprecedented high profits for the nation's meat-packing companies who continued to buy the farmers' hogs at a depression price of 10 to 12 cents for a considerable time this year. It was purely a matter of interpretation.

The Brannan policy of 1951-52 was carried out at a lower cost to the taxpayer and while a larger volume of hogs were being marketed than in 1955-1956. If Eisenhower and Benson really believed in fair prices for farmers, they would have incorporated their campaign promises into their farm programs and wouldn't be offering excuses to the American farmer today. Farmers will have nobody but themselves to blame if they buy another four years of the Benson farm program.

Then you would take the grain to town to the grain buyer and he would say what he would give for it. You were free to let him have it or take it home. The Nebraskan charges that Ellis in his official position is using money contributed by the REA members for Democratic campaign purposes. Curtis, according to the news columns, had in mind statements by Ellis charging that the position of rural districts had been weakened under the Eisenhower administration, that the preference clause which gives public power agencies first call on federal power is not being applied and that Nebraska should be getting the proposed Fort Randall-Grand Island 230,000 volt transmission line, but Undersecretary of Interior Clarence Davis, and Assistant Secretary Aandahl have, in effect, blocked the effort.

Now naturally Curtis would not entertain what are the facts?

All that Mr. Curtis needs to worry about is that transmission line, so badly needed for increased irrigation in the Platte Valley of this state. As the days go by and drought conditions become more intensified here in Nebraska, Nebraska's representatives in Congress can anticipate an increasing amount of criticism in the defeat of all efforts in this state to procure additional electric current for well irrigation.

does not want the President in a passive role. It does not take into account the exuberant crowds that greeted the President's mere appearance in Des Moines last week. The curious thing is that there is certainly no dramatic or emotional issue in the 1956 picture such as the Korean war or the tax scandals of the Truman administration to account for the slippage in Eisenhower strength. There are other factors adverse to him.

People intensely interested in foreign policy are alarmed. John Nuveen, one of the first leaders of the Eisenhower for President movement in Illinois, a lifelong Republican, announced he would vote for Stevenson just as the President entered the state. Nuveen said Mr. Eisenhower had failed to give effective foreign-policy leadership. This group is probably small.

There are those who quietly cite the President's health - an issue that will remain undercover throughout the campaign, barring a presidential illness. There is the controversy over Vice-President Richard M. Nixon.

Added up, they still aren't dramatic. They are not even accompanied by any great wave of pro-Stevenson emotion. Stevenson's party likes his fighting togs better than it did his rhetoric, but there is also nostalgia for those high-minded speeches.

The Small Farmer

Waverly, Neb. To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The recent statement to the effect that small farmers are going to have to get up and go to work like everyone else, with which President Eisenhower is reported to have been in agreement prompts this letter. It is similar to the statement attributed to Secretary of Agriculture Benson when he agreed with an article calling farmers a bunch of hogs who want everything.

The real truth is that farmers are living under a government that is subsidizing big business. This results in higher operating costs for farmers and lower prices for the produce they sell. An outstanding example of this is the government hog-buying program under Democratic and Republican administrations when price support laws were the same. Former Agriculture Secretary Brannan agreed to buy pork products provided the farmer was paid a 90 per cent support price by the packer. Secretary Benson agreed to buy pork at the prevailing market price-the idea being that some of this would "trickle down" to the American farmer. The price to both the processor and farmer, while the Benson policy ing companies who continued to buy the farmers' hogs at a depression price of 10 to 12 cents for a considerable time this year. It was purely a matter of interpretation.

The Brannan policy of 1951-52 was carried out at a lower cost to the taxpayer and while a larger volume of hogs were being marketed than in 1955-1956.

If Eisenhower and Benson really believed in fair prices for farmers, they would have incorporated their campaign promises into their farm programs and wouldn't be offering excuses to the American farmer today. Farmers will have nobody but themselves to blame if they buy another four years of the Benson farm program.

-Sorrell Warns-

'Nebraska Income Loss Largest'

AUBURN, Neb. - Nebraska suffered the greatest loss in income of any state in the nation, Frank Sorrell, Democratic candidate for governor, said in an address here Wednesday.

The estimated 1956 income for the state was down 10.3 per cent, according to U. S. News and World

This magazine is edited by Dayid Lawrence, long an advocate of Republican philosophies, so no partisan political implications can be attributed to the story, Sorrell pointed out.

The 1952 income for the state was $1,652 and the national average was $1,727. By 1956 it was estimated to have declined to $1,-482 while the national average had climbed to $1,915.

"Per capita income has gone down in Nebraska almost as much as it has gone up in the country as a whole," the report states.

With both parties very definitely appealing to the "pocketbook vote," Sorrell said he does not believe farmers and small businessmen will support the Republicans this year. In Nebraska it is time for a change after 16 years, he asserted. He pointed out that spending in Nebraska has increased 32 per cent in four years from $84,908,217 to $112,093,658.

'Stay-At-Home'

BELLEVUE, Neb. 48 - Frank Sorrell said he will be a "stay-athome governor" if elected.

The Democratic candidate for the job addressed a Democratic rally here and promised he would make every effort to bring industry to Nebraska.

Sorrell said rural areas of the state have 30 per cent of the people, 22 per cent of the income and pay 65 per cent of the taxes. For this reason, Sorrell added, he would refuse to sign any bill which would result in a real estate tax boost until small business and farm income is back to normal.

Civilian Pay Hike At LAFB To Total $72,000 Yearly

Effective the week beginning October 7th, 275 civilians at the Lincoln Air Force Base will receive a pay increase which will add approximately $72,000 a year to the civilian payroll.

Harold Mattson, civilian position classifier at the base, said the average increase will be 12 cents an hour, or about $250 a year for "blue collar" employes, such as carpenters and electricians. Supervisory workers will be increased 16 cents an hour or about $330 a

Mattson said graded schedule employes, such as clerks and secretaries, do not come under the pay increase. The wage hike, according to Mattson, is a result of a study made in the Lincoln area during the month of July to determine the wage scale being paid now as compared with the scale at the time of the last survey in June,

'Nebraska Income Loss Largest'

AUBURN, Neb. - Nebraska suffered the greatest loss in income of any state in the nation, Frank Sorrell, Democratic candidate for governor, said in an address here Wednesday.

The estimated 1956 income for the state was down 10.3 per cent, according to U. S. News and World

This magazine is edited by David Lawrence, long an advocate of Republican philosophies, so no partisan political implications can be attributed to the story, Sorrell pointed out.

The 1952 income for the state was $1,652 and the national average was $1,727. By 1956 it was estimated to have declined to $1,-482 while the national average had climbed to $1,915.

"Per capita income has gone down in Nebraska almost as much as it has gone up in the country as a whole," the report states.

With both parties very definitely appealing to the "pocketbook vote," Sorrell said he does not believe farmers and small businessmen will support the Republicans this year. In Nebraska it is time for a change after 16 years, he

He pointed out that spending in Nebraska has increased 32 per cent in four years from $84,908,217 to $112,093,658.

The Democratic candidate for the job addressed a Democratic rally here and promised he would make every effort to bring industry to Nebraska.

Sorrell said rural areas of the state have 30 per cent of the people, 22 per cent of the income and pay 65 per cent of the taxes. For this reason, Sorrell added, he would refuse to sign any bill which would result in a real estate tax boost until small business and farm income is back to normal.

Feaster said he thought the fire department's rating was up in the past 13 years but the big question is whether Lincoln's fire-fighting facilities have kept pace with the growth of the city,

The Lincoln fire department has seven stations, 131 men and 12 pieces of active equipment.

Feaster estimated it would be about three months before the board's findings are announced.

You're seeing why you'll ride sweet and low in the 57 FORD

On Wednesday, Oct. 3rd, you can see the new '57 Ford in all its glory. But (above) we're giving you a sneak preview of the "hidden beauty" that made the new Ford possible. You see, the new Ford was built from the inside out . . . just as a beautiful piece of architecture starts with its foundation. The new "Inner Ford" is the secret of Ford's magic . . . the inside story of why Ford is the longest, lowest, biggest, most spectacular Ford ever!

For the first time, you get a full-cradle frame that sweeps out as it dips down between the wheels. This helps give Ford a lower silhouette for 1957 . . . as much as 4 inches lower. You get full head room and leg roomactually you get more inside room, easier entry than ever. Rear springs are mounted outside the frame so the rear seats are lower. The new driveshaft is tapered and hooks up with the differential lower down than ever before. This lets you ride sweet and low with full road clearance.

But this is just the beginning of the new Ford story! Wait till you try its exciting new sizzle! Wait till you see Ford's wonderful new bodies that ride sweet and low with Ford's remarkable new frames. You're seeing why you'll ride sweet and low in the 57 FORD

On Wednesday, Oct. 3rd, you can see the new '57 Ford in all its glory. But (above) we're giving you a sneak preview of the "hidden beauty" that made the new Ford possible. You see, the new Ford was built from the inside out . . . just as a beautiful piece of architecture starts with its foundation. The new "Inner Ford" is the secret of Ford's magic . . . the inside story of why Ford is the longest, lowest, biggest, most spectacular Ford ever!

For the first time, you get a full-cradle frame that sweeps out as it dips down between the wheels. This helps give Ford a lower silhouette for 1957 . . . as much as 4 inches lower. You get full head room and leg roomactually you get more inside room, easier entry than ever. Rear springs are mounted outside the frame so the rear seats are lower. The new driveshaft is tapered and hooks up with the differential lower down than ever before. This lets you ride sweet and low with full road clearance.

But this is just the beginning of the new Ford story! Wait till you try its exciting new sizzle! Wait till you see Ford's wonderful new bodies that ride sweet and low with Ford's remarkable new frames. They not only have quality in every built-to-last part and feature . . . but they say "quality" in every clean-limbed, sculptured line. Better Duck Hunting In '56

Steen Sees

An officer of the Central Flyway predicted Wednesday that duck hunting inhNebraska, as in the flyway, will average about the same as last year.

The officer, C. S. Williams of Denver, is a representative of the Central Flyway division of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Williams said, though, that the distribution of birds throughout the midwest probably would be affected by drought conditions, mainly through the central part of the Single Policy Conservation of the Single Policy Conservation Conservati through the central part of the state.

Melvin Steen, game commission head in Nebraska, took a more optimistic view of the duck hunting possibilities in the state this year. He said a longer hunting season will give state hunters a better chance to hag their quotas.

seas market for top quality west- on Sept. 20. been no rush of sellers.

President Herbert Hughes of the no Lincoln address given. National Wheat Growers Assn., Rodriquez also pleaded innocent said Switzerland wants a boat load to a second charge of assaulting of top quality winter wheat-about the man's 40-year-old housekeeper with intent to rape. 350,000 bushels of it, which will test 60 pounds and has a protein content of 12.50 to 14 per cent.

But Hughes said he found that most of the farmers are not selling their No. 1 wheat."

The Swiss want the Nebraskan to submit an offer at local prices. However terminal elevator operators are not disposed to pay a premium for top quality wheat because they can get the government export subsidy of about 73 cents a bushel regardless of the quality of the wheat. Moreover Panhandle wheat for export must go to the Gulf ports by rail, which means an unfavorable freight rate, because most other export wheat is barged to seaports, However, Hughes said the shipping of wheat to Switzerland would create a new market which could conceivably increase the demand and in turn push up the price.

The four co-sponsoring student groups said they will ask each of the more than 900 students at Wesleyan to vote in their campus election October 25. But each voter will be asked to vote with a reason telling why he chose his candidate.

The Wesleyan, student newspaper, said it plans to print "the most sincere and sound" reasons presented. Winning reason will be published in a special edition of the student paper along with the results of the election.

The four campus groups sponsoring the mock presidential race are The Wesleyan, the Student Senate, the YMCA and the YWCA.
